DARCY AND FARMER EVENLY MATCHED

Pair Once Fought Six Rounds to Draw in Portland.

IMPROVEMENT IS NOTED

Coast Light-Heavy and Heavyweight Champion and Opponent Climb Ladder Rapidly.

BY DICK SHARP.

Jimmy Darcy and Frank Farmer, slugging, light-heavyweight mixers, who will meet here next Friday night, drew the largest crowd of fans that ever witnessed a six-round bout when they battled to a draw over that distance in a main event, when six rounds was the limit in Portland. Several weeks previous to the meeting Darcy gave away about 50 pounds or more weight to Jim Flynn and handed the fireman a lacing. At that time the Portland boy was weighing around 156 pounds.

Farmer was then imported for Darcy and against the advice of his friends Darcy took the fight. The encounter turned out to to be a gruelling affair and ended in a draw.

Since that time, which was two years ago, both boxers have elevated themselves on the pugilistic ladder. Farmer is the Pacific coast light-heavy and heavyweight champion, while Darcy has outgrown the middleweight class and is now said to be a full fledged 170-pounder. However, it is doubtful if he will scale that heavy, 165 being nearer actual weight. Darcy made 158 pounds for Joe Eagan shortly before he left for the east.

About four years ago Darcy and Farmer met for the first time. What Frank did to Jimmy on that occasion was a shame. The match was held in Seattle and Darcy then boxing under his real name, Valley Trambitas, was knocked down three or four times in four rounds. A year or so after that they tangled in another rough and tumble setto with the honors a little more even, yet Farmer still had the shade. This meeting was in Tacoma. Then the first Portland tangle which ended in a dead heat draw. Darcy is determined to even up all past scores this time and has ten rounds to do it in.

Jack Edmundson, the k. o. king of the stockyards, has had things pretty much his own way since his arrival here, but is liable to experience some rough sledding in his eight-round melee with Frankie Murphy in the semi-final of Friday night's card at the armory.

Edmundson gave tough old Bud Fisher a couple of drubbings and mal-treated Al Winters and Johnny Boscovitch. He had about 12 pounds in weight over Boscovitch and made good use of it. Murphy is a much better boy than any of these other mixers Jack has tackled, but Murphy has had it so easy with them that there is no telling what he will do, even to a man of Murphy's caliber. It is certain he hits harder with his right hand than any boxer at his weight who has ever fought around here. Eddie Marino is getting his charge in good shape for Murphy.

Joe Benjamin won an easy eight-round scrap from Harry ("Kid") Brown in Philadelphia the other night. Joe put him down twice but was contented to let him stick because he was afraid of sustaining an injury to his hand.

* * *

Pal Brown, the veteran St. Paul lightweight who at one time was regarded as a contender for the crown, is headed for Portland, according to word along the rialto. Brown has not been doing a great deal of boxing for the last several years, but should he be in any kind of condition, shouldn't have any trouble with the 135-pounders out here.

Charley White, the socking Chicago lightweight, is said to be thinking of taking a trip to the Pacific coast this summer and taking part in several bouts. A match between White and Bobby Harper should show just about how much real class the Seattle boy has.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 4.—(Special.)—Big Herman Pillette established himself as the hero of the Portland-Seattle series today when he came back after a day's rest and beat the Indians, 3 to 2. Kenworthy's Beavers won as they pleased in the first, 10 to 2, which gave them six out of the eight games played. As the Sacs and Seals both broke even, the tribe held their own in the race by dividing the holiday bill. Seattle batted the ball all over the lot in the first game.

Ty Cobb has an option on Pillette, and if Tyrus could have seen the youngster work the last two starts, he would have been quite pleased with the deal in which he turned a couple of pitchers over to McCredie. Saturday Pillette stopped the Seattle gang and yesterday he came right back and chucked another darb of a game.

The victorious Indians departed for Salt Lake on the night train, while Portland shoved off for Sacramento, where they open against the Sacs. Score:
